SHAPING THE FUTURE

3DPrinting.com was founded in 2011. Over the years we have become a leading source of news, information & resources for anyone interested in 3D printing.

We serve a highly focused niche of 3D printing professionals and enthusiasts from around the world. All interested in how 3D printing is going to shape the future.

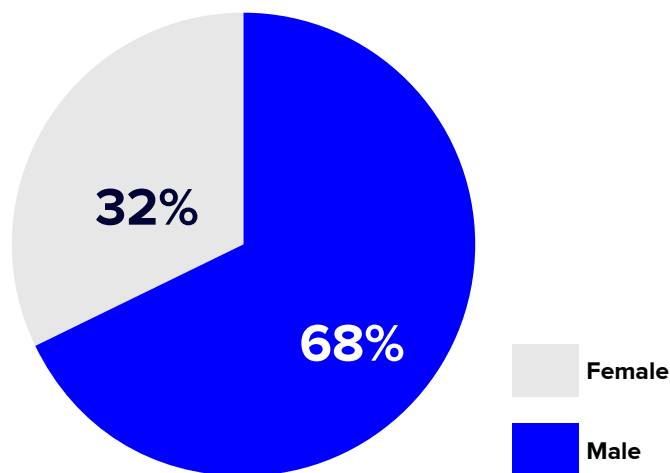

Together with our community we strive to push this amazing technology even further.

OUR COMMUNITY

Our community consists of so called technophiles: individuals with a strong interest in technology. They are a relatively young group of early adopters when it comes to new technologies like 3D printing. They are highly educated and work in technical jobs like IT, engineering, architecture and government.
